Centre for the Study of Social Exclusion and Inclusive Policy

Name of the Paper: Public Policy and Social Inclusion in India

Optional paper for M.A programme

Course Instructor: Dr.Sreepati Ramudu

Course Code: EI-577

M.A: 4th Semester

Duration: January-June

India is a country with institutionalised structures of social and economic diversity. Such diversity unless managed in a systematic manner, may lead to exclusion of certain underprivileged groups. Further it may pose a threat to the integration of the nation. As such to promote the human dignity, equality and national integration India has been continuously making policies in social, economic and political spheres. This apart, the growing significance of policy studies across the board also demand a focused analysis of different policy measures for social inclusion. In view of the above the present course is offered to the students of post-graduation as an optional paper keeping in view the growing employment opportunities as well.

Objective/Course Learning Outcomes:

1. To make students understand the concept of social policy.
2. To make students comprehend the significance of social policy in India.
3. To develop an approach to make students understand the different dimensions of social inclusion in India .
4. To prepare the students to analyze the new developments with respect to new policies for inclusion in India.
